

Depression PHQ9 6 month follow up

The rate of patients with depression who were given the Patient Health Questionnaire (PHQ-9) tool to track progress in treatment for depression at six months following the start of treatment. This nine-question survey helps doctors understand the problems patients are having and how they are feeling. PHQ-9 scores help doctors decide what treatment options may work best for each patient and show how well treatment is working over time. High rates of asking patients to complete the PHQ-9 survey can be a sign of strong clinic performance in depression care.

Page 1 of a 2 Page Graph

Depression PHQ9 6 month follow up

The rate of patients with depression who were given the Patient Health Questionnaire (PHQ-9) tool to track progress in treatment for depression at six months following the start of treatment. This nine-question survey helps doctors understand the problems patients are having and how they are feeling. PHQ-9 scores help doctors decide what treatment options may work best for each patient and show how well treatment is working over time. High rates of asking patients to complete the PHQ-9 survey can be a sign of strong clinic performance in depression care.

Page 2 of a 2 Page Graph

